3. Risk Assessment

Overall Risk Level: Medium

Risks:

- Risk 1: The non-compete clause imposes a significant restriction on the Employee for twelve months after termination, which may be seen as overly restrictive and could potentially violate local labor laws.
- Risk 2: The Employer's unilateral right to terminate the agreement with only 30 days' notice is one-sided and does not provide the Employee with adequate protection.

Unfair or One-Sided Clauses:

- Clause 4 (Termination): While it gives the Employer a reasonable notice period, this clause is one-sided as it does not specify any conditions for termination by the Employee.
- Clause 5 (Non-Compete): The non-compete restriction is extensive and may be deemed unenforceable if it unduly restrains trade or is overly broad.

Missing Protections:

- Lack of Protection for Employee: There is no provision protecting the Employee in case of termination, such as a severance package.
- No Defined Performance Standards: The agreement does not specify performance expectations or criteria for evaluation and promotion.
- No Clause on Intellectual Property Ownership: There is no clause addressing ownership of intellectual property created by the Employee during employment.

Recommendations:

- Recommendation 1: Revise the non-compete clause to make it more reasonable, possibly reducing the duration from twelve months to six months or less and ensuring that it does not unduly restrain trade.
- Recommendation 2: Include a mutual termination provision where both parties agree on terms for termination.
- Recommendation 3: Add a performance evaluation section detailing criteria for assessment of Employee's work and opportunities for promotion.

- Recommendation 4: Incorporate a clause defining the ownership of intellectual property created by the Employee during employment.
